ISO accreditation for manufacturing facility in Pune, India

Omega (AIM: ODX), the medical diagnostics company focused on allergy, food intolerance and infectious disease, announces that its fully owned Indian subsidiary, Omega Dx (Asia) Pvt. Ltd has received certificates of accreditation from BSI confirming its Quality Management System is compliant with ISO 9001:2008 and ISO 13485:2003.

The accreditation covers the manufacturing facility in Pune and ensures that product originating from this site is designed, manufactured and supplied to internationally recognised quality standards. This milestone is an important pre-requisite for CE-Marking the malaria and pregnancy tests produced at this site. CE-Marking is still expected to be achieved by the end of the current financial year.

Accreditation also means that products can be supplied for the Indian domestic market with immediate effect and the first commercial sale of one of the Company's malaria tests has now been achieved.

Andrew Shepherd, Chief Executive Officer of the Company commented: "We are pleased to have reached this milestone on schedule and look forward to generating a return from the investment to date in this facility."
